FEC PUBLISHES 1983 ANNUAL REPORT

WASHINGTON -- Citing a climate of relative stability four years after the passage of major amendments to the election law in 1979, the Federal Election Commission published its 1983 Annual Report this week.

The Commission emphasized its efforts in attending to the information needs of the public, including an effective outreach program and extensive revision of regulations and operating procedures for the 1984 Presidential elections.

The FEC is required by law to make an annual report to the President and to each House of Congress by June 1 of each year, stating in detail the agency's activities in carrying out its duties under the Federal Election Campaign Act.

Copies of the annual report are available from the Commission's Office of Public Communications.
